this work studies three twenty first century novels by richard powers dave eggers and don delillo as representative of a new trend of us fiction concerned with the topic of the technological augmentation of the human condition the different chapters provide from the double perspective of the optimistic transhumanist philosophy and the more balanced approach of critical posthumanism an overview of the narrative strategies used by the writers to explore the possibilities that biotechnology digital technologies and cryonics open up to transcend our human limitations while also warning their readers of their most nefarious consequences ultimately the book puts forward the claim that even if the writers approach the subject from a variety of perspectives and using different narrative styles and techniques they all share a critical posthumanist fear that an unrestrained and unquestioned use of technology for enhancement purposes may bring about disembodiment and dehumanization american fiction of the 1990s reflections of history and culture brings together essays from international experts to examine one of the most vital and energized decades in american literature this volume reads the rich body of 1990s american fiction in the context of key cultural concerns of the period the issues that the contributors identify as especially productive include immigration and america s geographical borders particularly those with latin america racial tensions race relations and racial exchanges historical memory and the recording of history sex scandal and the politicization of sexuality postmodern technologies terrorism and paranoia american fiction of the 1990s examines texts by established authors such as don delillo toni morrison philip roth and thomas pynchon who write some of their most ambitious work in the period but also by emergent writers such as sherman alexie chang rae lee e annie proulx david foster wallace and jonathan franzen offering new insight into both the literature and the culture of the period as well as the interaction between the two in a way that furthers the new american studies this volume will be essential reading for students and lecturers of american literature and culture and late twentieth century fiction contributors include timothy aubry alex blazer kasia boddy stephen j burn andrew dix brian jarvis suzanne w jones peter knight a robert lee stacey olster derek parker royal krishna sen zoe trodd andrew warnes and nahem yousaf spider labyrinth tightrope walk explores the shifting functions of the network as a metaphor model and as an epistemological framework in us american literature and culture from the 19th century until today the book critically inquires into the literary cultural philosophical and scientific rhetoric values and ideological underpinnings that have given rise to the network concept literature and culture play a major role in the ways in which networks have been imagined and how they have evolved as conceptual models this study regards networks as historically emergent and culturally constructed formations closely tied with the development of knowledge technologies in the process of modernization as well as with an increasingly critical awareness of network technologies and infrastructures while the rise of the network in scientific philosophical political and sociological discourses has received wide attention this book contributes an important cultural and historical perspective to network theory by demonstrating how us american literature and culture have been key sites for thinking in and about networks in the past two centuries engaging with critical theory poststructuralist perspectives cultural studies film theory and urban studies the book provides stunning insights into the micropolitics of ethnicity identity security subjectivity and sovereignty the theme of the planetary clock is the representation of time in postmodern culture and the way temporality as a global phenomenon manifests itself differently across an antipodean axis to trace postmodernism in an expansive spatial and temporal arc from its formal experimentation in the 1960s to environmental concerns in the twenty first century is to describe a richer and more complex version of this cultural phenomenon exploring different scales of time from a southern hemisphere perspective with a special emphasis on issues of indigeneity and the anthropocene the planetary clock offers a wide ranging revisionist account of postmodernism reinterpreting literature film music and visual art of the post 1960 period within a planetary framework by bringing the culture of australia and new zealand into dialogue with other western narratives it suggests how an antipodean impulse involving the transposition of the world into different spatial and temporal dimensions has long been an integral if generally occluded aspect of postmodernism taking its title from a florentine clock designed in 1510 to measure worldly time alongside the rotation of the planets the planetary clock ranges across well known american postmodernists john barth toni morrison to more recent science fiction writers octavia butler richard powers while bringing the us tradition into juxtaposition with both its english philip larkin ian mcewan and australian les murray alexis wright counterparts by aligning cultural postmodernism with music messiaen ligeti birtwistle the visual arts hockney blackman fiona hall and cinema rohmer haneke tarantino this volume enlarges our understanding of global postmodernism for the twenty first century from elizabeth stoddard s the morgesons and anzia yzierska s the bread givers to laurie colwin s shine on bright and dangerous object and chet raymo s the dork of cork here are some of the forgotten gems of american literature bridges has compiled a diverse list of 100 american novels published between 1797 and 1997 and worthy of the title great although the idea is to bring light to the obscure these titles are physically accessible to readers either in print or represented in library collections and available through library loan
